

Wolfe at Large: Away from the Brownstone

Red Box, The

A client manages to maneuver Wolfe out of the house on business.

Too Many Cooks

Wolfe attends a meeting of the 15 masters, as a favor to Marko, and exerts himself to try to learn a secret recipe.

Some Buried Caesar

Wolfe and Archie, taking orchids to an exposition upstate, are detoured by murder.

Black Orchids

Wolfe wants to see for himself whether someone has developed true black orchids.

Not Quite Dead Enough

Wolfe working for Army Intelligence in WWII.

The Silent Speaker

Wolfe is ordered to Police Commissioner Hombert's office by Inspector Ashe while Cramer is on leave of absence.

The Second Confession

A case puts Wolfe at odds with Arnold Zeck, the criminal mastermind.

In the Best Families

Wolfe's final confrontation with Arnold Zeck.

Three Doors to Death

Theodore is away looking after his mother during a serious illness, so Wolfe needs a good orchid man.

Prisoner's Base

Archie is (falsely) arrested for impersonating a police officer, and Wolfe is served as a material witness.

The Black Mountain

To catch the murderer of an old friend, Wolfe and Archie travel to Montenegro

Three Men Out

In "This Won't Kill You", Archie has to take Pierre Mondor and Wolfe to a baseball game

Before Midnight

Wolfe doesn't travel on business, but this is personal: a murder in the office.

And Four to Go

Out of respect for Marko Vukcic (and to get them to lay off of Fritz), Wolfe speaks at a URWA picnic

Plot It Yourself

Wolfe confronts his clients at the Clover Club, his own bungling after complying with one of their requests having led to not one but 3 murders.

Three Witnesses

In "The Next Witness", Wolfe is under subpoena.

The Mother Hunt

Evading the police

Three for the Chair

In "Immune to Murder", Wolfe is finagled into visiting River Bend to cook brook trout for an ambassador.

Death of a Dude

Wolfe travels to Lily Rowan's ranch in Montana, to extricate Archie from a murder investigation.